What makes me happy?

My family makes me happy because they are always there for me. When I need them they have my back, but the most important person to me is my Mom. She loves me even though I always get into trouble. My Mom is always with me when I want to spend time with her. I love her so much, because she's been in my life 13 years even though again and again I've been locked up and away from her for 6 months. But I still love my Mom and my brothers. My family is the most important thing to me because my family is always there for me all the time. When I need them or when I get in trouble. My Mom loves me a lot and that makes me happy. When my Mom is happy with me we will always be together and it makes me and her happy. When we spend time together or when I get my PFC pass I'm with my Mom and my family all day. Sometimes I like to be alone in my heart but my family still loves me even though I've been locked up half a year. I thank God a lot for putting me back with my family and staying with them forever. But one thing I learned in here is that being away from my family is hard but then you get used to it. But one thing God told me is never give up and never let go of a relationship with God and my family again. God told me always to keep faith in him.

HAPPINESS always make HAPPINESS
