Advanced Search

Advanced search is the most versatile of the search options. Use it when you want to limit your search to specific fields (e.g. limiting a search of the word “brown” in the title or author field would yield very different results). You may use the AND, OR, and AND NOT operators between the field indicators to narrow your search. Results are displayed alphabetically by title.

Search Tip:

Click on the Show search options link to expand the Options area and limit your search to specific parameters such as:

- Matching ALL Keywords, Match ANY Keyword, or Exact Phrase.
- Year or year range.
- Format such as audiobook, book, or visual material.

Texas HHSC employees and contractors may search the Electronic Library at <https://tdshs.tdnetdiscover.com/portal> for e-books, e-journals and databases.

Browse Search

There are many different indexes available to you when using the Browse Search option. For example, you may look for all titles, all authors, or local call number.

A-Z search is also available under Browse search. It allows you to search not only based on an index but also by spelling either the beginning of the word (Begins), an included word (Contains), or an ending word (Ends). These options allow you to filter your search.

For example, using the word “health”, you can see how you might receive different results.

- Begins looks for the word “health” at the beginning of the field, such as Health literacy from A to Z.
- Contains looks for the word or phrase anywhere within the field, such as Epidemiology for public health practice.
- Ends looks for the word at the end of the search field, such as Nutritional health.
